THE MOUNTAIN.

From lands of sunshine gay with bloom We took the northern course and came To that great city which delights Grim satire in Seattle's name.

A remant weak, his people take
The crumbs that from her table fall;
The past is theirs, the future hers
Who crowds them harshly to the wall.

Proudly she sits upon her hills, Her various waters gleaming round; Her snowy crested mountains fair, Soft mirrored in their blue profound.

But one, the top and crown of all, High soaring far above the rest, Hid in impenetrable clouds His towering head, his ample breast.

But, oh, at length a morning dawned, One more divine earth never knew, When better far than tale or dream The mountain clove the heavenly blue The mountain! All the snowy peaks
Which mountains seemed the day bef
That day were little hills, so high
We saw the highest climb and soar.

So high! So grand! And yet with all So sweetly, delicately fair. We had believed if one had said, "A dream, a phantom of the air."

And as the perfect day went by
More dreumlike still the mountain gre
As gathering mists, a purple zone,
Around his base their vesture drew

All white and pure from grown to foot
There floated in the azure deep
A hill of heaven, a mount of God.
It made our hearts with gladness leap.

The things of sense are types of soul. How oft for many days the best Is thick involved in clouds that chill Man's heart within his lonely breast! And then there comes a day of days, And floating bright in heavenly air He sees the mount of God, all white With fields of faith and founts of pi

And by that glorious vision blest He knows the peace that passeth thought God folds him to his heart. His good Is better than the best he sought. —John W. Chadwick.

NOT IN THE BOOK.

I was sitting in a tiny shoeshop, perched high and dry on the sea wall, watching my friend, the "cap'n," stitch shoes-little children's shoes. I called him "cap'n" by way of compliment, this queer old fellow with his bald pate and oily, mackerel face. Truth to tell, I doubt his having arrived even to the dignity of mate, and it was many a long year since his desertion of the Mary Lib and her crew for the safer but less lucrative occupation of making shoes.

The bay before us glinted and sparkled beneath the pale, sunlit sky like a monster diamond, and away to the left stretched the green waters of the Atlantic, mysterious and enchanting. "Did yeh know thet some summ folks had bought the islun?" casually remarked the cap'n as he paused to rewax and roll his thread.

"Which island?" I proceeded to inquire, for there were some half dozen rock heaps dotting the bay.

"Why-er, the one alongside of Jilly's pint, with the dear little trees on et.
See 'em?"

"Oh, you mean 'Pirate's isle'!"
"Well, I never heerd et called thet." This was too much. I drew a yellow covered guidebook from my pocket and triumphantly read:

"Pirate's Isle." A small island off Jilly's point, noted for having been the resort of pirates before and after the Revolution. The house is still standing from which old Hiebborn and his gang were routed by the government inspectors in 1790.

"Gorry, yeh don't say? Wery cur'ous, 'cause my gran'ther built thet house, 'nd he warn't no pirate. Leastways, I never heerd of his bein. He only fished off the Gran banks." And the cap'n favored me with a prodigious wink—a wink of exultation at my defeat and delight at putting my book in the lie. It was not the first time he had done this, and in disgust I tossed the poor paper thing through the open window into the sea. Henceforth the cap'n should be my only

A mighty wave, chancing to dash against the red brown rocks below, sent up a saucy wreath of spray to sprinkle our faces with salt drops. The cap'n looked up from his work and regarded admiringly his old time enemy, Father Ocean, and musing apostrophized:

The Varied Value of Silver. Silver, in its relative commercial value to gold, has varied greatly at different times since the two metals were first used for coins. In the days of Abraham the patriarch it was 8 to 1; B. C. 1000, it was 12 to 1; B. C. 500, 13 to 1, and at the beginning of the Christian era, about 9 to 1. In the year 500 A. D. it was 18 to 1, in 1100 it was 8 to 1, and at the time of the discovery of America only 7 to 1.

In the year 1500 gold was only six times more valuable than the precious white metal, and within the next 100 years two pounds of silver could be ex-changed evenly for one of gold. In 1616 gold was again on the boom, being 10 times more valuable than its paler brother, and in 1725 it was 13 times more valnable than silver, just as it was 500 years B. C. At the beginning of the present entury silver was at a lower figure than it had been at any time since the year 500 A. D.—viz, 15.98 to 1. In 1876 the ratio (commercial) of silver to gold was 20 to 1, and in 1892 it was at the point it has ever reached since the discovery of America—24.24 to 1. The figures for the present year are wanting.-St. Louis Republic.

Woman's Suffrage. The social arena is now being greatly agitated over the question of woman's saffrage, and political strife is being carried on in all parts of this broad domain of ours, in regard to whether women shall be allowed the "T'm waiting, cap'n," was the only response. And quietly at first, with many a pause for a long pull at his clay pipe, but with ever increasing emotion, he related the following story, which has haunted me ever since:

"Et were 16 year ago come this fall thet a big feller, named Sam Weston, come ashoro with wife 'nd little un. He were mate on the Breezy, a fishin wessel bound for the banks. He come to father 'nd said: 'Will yeh rent me thet life.' right of elective franchise, whether which is so agitating the minds of the truth nor justice, and it will be one of the greatest curses to mankind that probably the world has ever known, if such a thing were to occur.

Did not God when He created Adam and put him in the Garden of Eden make him ruler over all living things therein? Then when He created Eve, did He ever say that she too shall iale? Did He say that she should should be his God, that he should should follow? Women far excel win his respect and admiration by her superiority, but by her pure. maidenly modesty. We know women have the light to live, the right to liberty, the right- to hold property, and we furthermore believe she has the right to be protected by man, and not man by her.

Supposing the question to be right, is women qualified to take a man's place as a politician? Her qualifications may be all right, but has she strength or will power to go through with what he must undergo? We do not consider her mental qualifications inferior to that of man; for if he is a tower of strength "she is a thing of joy and beauty. If he is brave she wins as much by her diffidence as he by his courage. If he makes us see and realize that life is real; she so entwines herself around our hearts that it makes earth seem a Paradise. If he holds the reins of justice in his hands, and makes us tremble at the sound of his voice, she is the sweet angel of mercy who speaks peace to our troubled spirits. She has been described as being a fair fragile flower, and man as a strong and mighty mind, able to bear the torms and trials of life, which seems so well adapted to his pecular make-up.

Women may as we have said possess the rare insight as to how a Nation should be governed. Yet she cannot be qualified to do what God has assigned man. Shame onthe woman who would step down and out of the spere in which God has placed her, to Jess. Let me in.' 'Nd I threw open God has given man upon her own shoulders. Is she brave enough to face the artillery of death? Can she undertake the cares and responsibilities of political strife or the intricate difficulties of jurisprudence?

We do not think her bravery when put to a test will lead her into such fields of tame. There are a few who could and would undergo these trials, but we mean the majority of the women of to-day could not nor would not be a Joan of Arc or a Mary Walker, of Baltimore. We believe that Woman's Rights are essential to every regulated government. Not her right as a politician, no, a thousand times no! Not her right to go to the polls and vote or to engage in political strife in any way shape or form. But her right as a wife, a mother or a sister around the fireside, in the dear home circle, to make home bright and attractive, and her right as a mother should be looked upon with reverence and awe, for the mother by her influence moulds the mind of her boy; she forms his character and imbibes in him truths that go to make up the true man. She fits him for the part he will play in the drama of life when he becomes a part of the Nation's political welfare.

It has been well said the hand that rocks the cradle, is the hand that rules the world. Don't understand me to mean she rules from a political standpoint, but by her purity and her womanly modesty, and the noble principles that she has instilled into the mind of her boy. She has a right to be well read, and then if she wants her influence felt in the political world; let her teach her boys or her brothers until they shall take neither the one side nor the other, until they have thoroughly investigated each party and understand the science upon which they are based-then let conscience be their guide in choosing and make them feel their "vote is as sacred as their honor."

If women were to engage in politics, what would become of the home circle that is so sacred to every true heart? It would be dangerous to every household in the land, the wife would at once assert her superiority, thus causing disagreement and conflict. How any true pure woman can figure in polititical strife, can go upon the platform and make a speech, can canvass for an office, is one of the mysteries I cannot solve? It seems to me that when she goes on the platform, she is degrading both herself and her sex, she looses that timid shrinking modesty, the charm which characterizes her sex, which God has so beautifully given her, as a halo that surrounds her and shields her from the tumult of a cruel and malicious world, and she looses the respect of her fellow-beings, and the admiration which is justly hers, for no person can or will have the same true, refined, delicate feeling for a lady who has figured in public life.

But this question which is so full of peril to our hearts, our homes, our

GIVE us back the morning mail. Good morning, Senator Taylor.

BUTLER county went Republican. TAYLOR is a runner from 'way

WHAT has gone with Tom Smith's old time majorities?

WHITTAKER has the appearance of being very badly Taylored.

THE race in Grayson county wa the closest in a number of years. WHATEVER Obio county lacked

Ohio State made up a thousand fold. HAD this been a Presidential year the country would have gone almost as solidly Republican as it did Democratic last year. McKinley was re-elected Governor of Ohio by 80,000 majority. He will no doubt be the Republican candidate for President in 1896.

THE corrupt Judge Maynard, whom the Democrats attempted to foist upon the people of New York was over whelmingly defeated.

MR. F. W. PIRTLE, against overwhelming odds, made a strong fight. He was never in the race from start to finish but he fought on just the same.

No correct rhturns could be had from Butler and Muhlenberg as regards the Senatorial race, but the indications are that Taylor's majority will not be less than 450.

NEW YORK, Massachusetts and Iowa went Republican Tuesday. This with the Ohio election is a very emphatic rebuke to the Democratic Administration with its record of panic and ruin.

In 1890 the total vote for this county was about 5,000, this year about 3,300. In view of the disparity between these totals we are constrained to ask, "where were these other fellows at?"

It is much to be desired that the new Board of Trustees will require the building of brick walks. The plank walks are more expensive and in their present condition on some streets, are a disgrace to the town.

THE Republicans of Muhlenberg elected "Wal" Lewis Tuesday as Superintendent. is an able an efficient teacher, fully abreast of the times, and we predict for him a successful administration.

THE defeated Republican candidates made a good fight and with a more active interest in the party would have won in a canter. They retain the high confidence the people have ever reposed in them and to the will of the people bow a graceful submission.

MR. C. S. TAYLOR made a gallant fight and won by a large majority, carrying two of the three counties and running far ahead of his ticket in this county. He is an excellent man, and will make an excellent representative. The District will be proud of her Senator.

THE attention of the people is call ed to the circular letter from the State Board of Health published in another column. The people are notified of the existence of small pox in Indiana, Ohio and Pennsylvania, and warned to take proper steps for the prevention of the disease in this State.

THE folks who signed the petition last spring to have the early mail discontinued now see their folly. The mail is discontinued and they didn't "miss the water till the well ran dry." The early mail was the most important one of the three and its discontinuance is a great inconvenience to the people. An effort should be made at once to have it reinstated.

MR T. J. SMITH will represent Ohio county in the next Legislature. He is, as THE REPUBLICAN stated at the time of his nomination, well qualified for the place, and the people join in wishing that he may play a good part as a law-maker. But as is usual with Democratic members of Democratic Legislatures in Kentucky the chances are that he will come home from the session as dead politically as it is possible to conceive.

OLD Muhlenberg, true to her interests, re-elected Dr. A. D. James to the Legislature on Tuesday. This is as it should be. Dr. James is an able man, eminently qualified to fill the important post and the county honors herself in being represented so worthily. Almost the only argument offered against him by his opponents was the flimsy objection that he had resigned his place in the last Legislature to accept the position of World's Fair Commissioner. Merely a silly acknowledgment on the part of the Democrats that no objections worthy fine Hotel at this place and will move 9:30 and expect a full attendance of the rame could be offered a, ainst him total vote of Ohio county by precincts. A careful study of the table will furnish food for thought, and we advise all Republicans to study it. Tis true the Democracy carried our county electing their entire ticket so far as this county is concerned, but we make a showing in several precincts which points to the election of our entire ticket next year. By a glance at the table Democrats may learn a thing or two also. The People's Party vote was not as large as it was 1 and 2 years ago, yet it shows a strength not to be ignored by the thinking people. Both old parties polled a very small vote. See table elsewhere.

ZEB SHULTZ was elected School Superintendent Tuesday. He will enter upon the duties of the office on the second Monday in next August, at which time the present term expires. THE REPUBLICAN wishes bim a successful term and while it supported another for the position to which he has been chosen, it will labor with the same zeal for the advancement of the great cause of education. He will make an earnest and faithful officer and we hope to see the schools enjoy continued prosperity. To this end, Zeb, you will ever find THE RE-PUBLICAN laboring, and when you are fighting for the schools it will always stand by you. But between now and the beginning of your official career you had as well be practicing and demally for you will have occasion for a very extensive use of that commodity. You will no doubt think before you are through that you are the most roundly and soundly abused mortal that was ever so unfortunate as to have an existence in the world. But that will not be true, Zeb. All who faithfully and fearlessly fill that laborious and most important position are treated to the same avalanche of abuse. So, git ready.

Election Notes. The presence in the Republican camp of that old scoundrel General Apathy, is the main cause of the defeat of the Republican candidates though there are other causes by no means insignificant. With proper exertion and activity on the part of Republicans generally, both our candidates could have been elected.

The Democrats do not propose to abide by the new election law, but continue their old time custom of 'boodling' and 'liquoring' the "floaters." This was carried on in Hartford and it is said nearly or quite the Hartford precincts many of the day. colored voters were bought to vote Democratic straight and others were hired to stay away from the polls. Hence the big Democratic majority

Within the last six years, the Republicans have at one time or another carried every precinct in the county but two, Buford and Ellis, Only a few years ago it was not uncommon for Fordsville to give 100 Democratic majority. Tuesday it gave Taylor a majority of 66. The light! the light!

Shreve went Republican Tuesday for the first time in her history. Hurrah for Shreve!

Awtry received as many votes in his home precinct as both his opponents combined. But Smith didn't do as much in his precinct by a good

Tuesday's election demonstrates more forcibly than ever that the sentiment of the county is cearly Republican if fully expressed. The Democrats left nothing undone, either fair or foul that would further the interests of their candidates and yet they were barely able to win. Almost a full outfit of county officers are to be elected next year, and with the increased interest that will bring and a good strong pull all along the line Ohio county will shake off the thraldom of Democracy and wheel into the Republican column. Whittaker received a bigger vote in

Hartford than did Smith,

Warning Against Small-Pox. STATE BOARD OF HEALTH OF KEN-) TUCKY, BOWLING GREEN, KY ..

November 4, 1833.) TO THE HEALTH OFFICIALS, PHYSI MANS AND PROPLE OF KENTUCKY: - This Board has received official information of the existence of small-pox in many sections of this country, particularly in Indians, Ohio and Pennsylvania. It also prevails extensivly in Europe, and manifests an unusual tendency everywhere to break over official control and assume an epidemic form.

This Board, therefore, feels it to be its duty to warn the people that decisive action should at once he taken to protect the State from this loathsome malady. Fortunately the method of prevention is as certain in its action as it is cheap and easy to obtain. Vaccination and re-vaccination, properly done, with reliable virus, is a certain preventive, and is entirely free from danger. This is the conclusion of the scientific world, after full investigation and large experience, and may be thoroughly relied upon. Notwithstanding that this safe, chea, and perfect protection is within the reach of all, it is estimated that nearly one-third of the people of this State have never availed themselves of it Intelligent persons should not wait for the law to force them to an evident duty. No one should allow himself, or any one for whom he is responsible, to remain unvaccinated at any time, and especially in the face of the present danger. Health and school boards, everywhere, should co-operate in requiring vaccination as a condition of admission to all schools, public and private, and the proprietors of manufactories and railroads should make the same requirement of their employees. The operation should always be done by a competent physician, at three points in the same arm, and the person vaccinated should be seen by him from time to time that he may know that a perfect result has been secured. Imperfect vaccination can only give rise to a false and often fatal sense of security.

By the promptness and efficiency of several of our county boards in former years, the disease was easily stamped out. In other counties no such precautions were taken at the outset, and the disease was only checked after serious loss of life, great interference with business, from the panic incident to an epidemic of this disease, and an expenditure of money, !which, if judiciously used in systematic vaccination beforehand, would have given perfect immunity to every citizen in the community. Here, as in many other things, an ounce of prevention is not only better but cheaper than a pound of cure. In this, and all other matters pertaining to the public health, the State Board holds itself in readiness to assist the local boards to the full extent of its powers; and all physicians of the Daniel? State are requested to promptly notify their local boards of health of the first outbreak of this or any other con'agious disease in their respective communities.

I WANT TO KNOW.

She came from way down east, they said, And being introduced she led Me there to recapitulate The city's phases up to date, And when my full directory I had retailed she said to me-"I want to know?"

I told her everything I knew That worthy was of interview; Retailed to her each shopping mart, The homes of drama, music, art, The drives, menageries and parks. Described with eloquent remarks The watering places roundabout, Enthused o'er each excursion route, Talked till, in fact, my tongue grew weak,

Then heard again in accents meek-"I want to know?" Angels of mercy! Had I then Obeyed the impulse born of men And with warm maledictions hurled That spinster to the lower world From open window where I sat. Would not the gods approved of that?

THE BOOMHOUSE MAN.

What appeals to me as my most interesting experience as a writer occurred a winter or two ago in a little lumber hamlet of the hill region of Kentucky. For a moment at least it was quite thrilling-rather too thrilling indeed to be useful as material to me with my straight and simple art standards. I have a groveling fondness for reproducing only the usual features of life, and this little episode, though it was pitifully commonplace in its setting, had about it something that was not only unusual, but nearly sublime.

I had gone down to the village in question with the ambitious design of seeing a "tide" in the river. Tides are peculiar to wintry months. They are useful to lumbermen and incidentally to writers, but they have their unpleasant features. My little hill hamlet, having doffed its green livery, was cowled in dark mud. Rain sheeted the air. The inn seemed to be saturated, and the roar of the river on the skirts of the town corroborated the innkeeper's assurance concerning the magnitude of the special "tide" which was in progress. "She's booming for all that's in her," declared the innkeeper, an elderly man, who had enjoyed during the previous summer the happy privilege of being useful to me in many ways. "They look for the boom to bust tonight. Thousands of dollars afloat. You see that man by the stove? He's one of the big timber fellers from up north. Just come down. He'll lose heavy if she busts. Say, miss, take a look at that feller! You remember me telling you about the boomhouse man's daughter? Well, that feller-he was the man-he was Idy's beau.'

I remembered the story. On a certain day in the previous June I was standing at the head of a mill chute looking down at the sunken river. Suddenly a dugout shot round the bend. The man in the rude thing seemed only half human. He was bent and shrunken, with a clay colored skin, matted red hair and such a woebegone vacuity of face as startled one. The innkeeper had related that this poor creature lived alone in the boomhouse, a shed on the river cliff, and that his duty was to cook for the loggers in time of tides.

"He's seen trouble," said the "Used to own a nice little farm up yonder and live well. He had an only daughter. Pretty as a peach, Idy was. Slim waisted, with kinky red hair and big eyes. He sat store by Idy. Nothing was too good for her. And one summer a son of one of the mill owners was down here settling up the mill books, and he took a fancy to Idy, and folks said it'd be a match. The boomhouse man was proud as a peafowl. And after the young feller went north again. why, Idy's paw he narrated around that the wedding was to come off on Christmas day and how't Idy was going up north to live in great style. But the young feller never came back. He never came back," repeated the innkeeper, with a graphic sort of pause. "And Idy -well, I always said if she'd of had a mother things would have been different. I always said she took the best way out of it. For 'bout the time tongues was beginning to wag Idy was missing one day, and they found her tangled up in the river drift yonder where the sandbar reaches across the shallows."

"And what did her father do?" "Do? Oh, he acted like he'd got it between the eyes. Kind of daft. Ain't been just right ever since." This tragic narrative, which the innkeeper related with the equanimity of an epic poet, recurred to me vividly as I observed the man by the stove. He was middle aged. The story lay 15 years behind him, but he had a chin which made me believe the innkeeper an honest chronicler. He was stolid and well fed. Apparently life had laid no heavy penalty upon night in rather a notable situation. Just after dark the inkeeper and his daughter and I set out across the cliff path to see the river in active operation. We walked in the wind's teeth, with a splitting rain in our faces. It was cold and bleak. Then in an instant the river flashed in sight. Its whole freshet swollen current flamed with red from countless fire baskets and lanterns. Long shafts of vermilion stabbed the packed timber in the boom, struck across the the pike poles in the loggers's hands. Men were leaping about on the logs. In a flare of crimson I saw on the wedged in float the man who had been Ida's lover. He was working sturdily as any logman about, handling the heavy cables and shouting directions.

It was worth seeing, that mountain stream as it mouthed at the straining timber in the boom. It was worth seeing but the air was cold and wet, and in the second hour of our watching the innkeepers daughter, being upheld by neither hospitality nor ambition, besought me to accompany her to the boomhouse for the purpose of getting "thored out."

The boomhouse showed its little red window just below us on the rocks. The two tiny rooms of the place looked warm and bright as we opened Half a dozen men were drinking coffee from tin cups at a table. The boomhouse man, apathetic as ever, with his resinous looking hair in his pale eyes, was frying bacon in a great skillet. The innkeeper joined the throng a the board. His daughter and I sat by the stove in the inner room.

I shall never forget that room. The pattern of the homespun coverlet on the claw, of Owensboro, costinues with boomhouse man's pallet is indelibly with

Soothed by the heat, the innkeeper's daughter dozed off, with her feet on the many are still under convictoin and hearth. I remember observing with the christians are greatly revived in dreamy interest the yellowness of the teeth exhibited in the graceful abandon of her slumber. I thought of snuff. I think I had a drowsy moment myself. Some one stamped noisily into the other room and asked for whisky. I glanced out. It was the mill man of Idy's infatuation. He flung himself at ingth on a bench behind the cook store agth on a bench behind the cook stove and lay with shut eyes. The ciothes were dripping with thin mud, and an air of utter weariness pervaded his attitude. "He had scarcely looked at the boomhouse man. I glanced at him, however, and became aware that his aspect had changed. Something like life shone in the pale eyes under that unkempt hair. He was standing still, just staring with a half blind gaze at the man on the bench. Suddenly he stepped forward like a

"It's you, ain't it?" he said. The man on the bench shot round a startled gaze. He saw the revolver in the lean hand leveled toward him. He must have recognized Idy's father in the figure standing over him, sternly poised as to a deed of necessary vengean "I knowed God A'mighty 'd give you up to me soon or late," said the old man simply. "I waited. They ain't nothin cast a thread of light on the lifted face of the man on the bench. I myself had a sense of inability to move or speak. The innkeeper's girl slept on. Whatever consciousness I had seemed to be in the millman's frame, passively awaiting a sharp, metallic click. There was no chance at all for him. He seemed to see this and to take

"Go on," he said. "I wronged you. I've got-a little daughter-myself. If loose them. you've any heart in you-don't say-

His voice broke. The briefest instant passed. And then waited for. The boomhouse man moved a little. The rigor left his form, and I saw his arm fall slowly against his side.

An Old Friend.

In a series of interviews with members of the last Congress, 31 out of 43 remarked that they were readers of the Youth's Companion. For definite and trustworthy information on the questions of the day it is really unique, while the high character of its stories, the wide fields covered by its special articles, and its contributions from the most famous writers in America and Europe, are well known.

Its program for next year seems brighter than ever. Some of the importantistories are: "The Deserter." by Harold Frederic; a Tale of the great mutiny in India, by Sara Jeanette Duncan; several romances of the Sea, by W. Clark Russell; Tales of War, and the Frontier in early Days. Henry M. Stanley contributes 'two thrilling stories from darkest Africa, and Archibald Forbes writes of his "Closest Call." Naval battles are described by Admirals, and Millitary on choosing an occupation, Boys Who Should Not Go to College, Physical Training, Recreation of all kinds, and many other practical subjects.

Another charming feature is the charming picture of a young lady of colonial times, "Sweet Charity," re-Scrofula is one of the most terrible produced is colors from Ferris, which send their $1.75 for a new subscription or a renewal.

UNION GROVE. Oct. 30-Elder Robt. J. Brandon closed one of the most successful meetings ever conducted at this place last week. The meeting began on the 16th and resulted in thirty-five additions to the church and a general great rejoicing among the brethren. Great good has been accomlished and we hope the good work may go on and that we may all live better christians in the future than we have in the past. May those young brethren and sisters who have obeyed the command to "repent and be baptized for the remission of sins," continue steadfast in the Apostle's doctrine that finally we may all be in that mighty throng that John saw that no man could number, walking the streets of light, having washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb. My prayer is, that we may all be faithful unto the end, that finally we may lay down the cross and pick up the crown and dwell with Jesus our blessed Re-

"A story is told of a lady school teacher, teaching not a thousand miles from this city, who having an inordiing was in progress in a hoop shop nate dread of contagious disease, sent a little girl home because she said her mother was sick and had symptoms of something alarming. The next day she presented herself at school with her finger in her mouth and her bonnet swinging by the strings, and said: 'We've got a little baby at our house but mamma told me to tell you that it isn't catchin'.' The teacher blushed and said she was very glad, and told-the pupil to take
